The Southwest.

A Grand Country for Homeseekers and Investors.

Excursion Rates Twice a Month.

Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas offer the greatest inducements for persons desiring to own their homes. Cheap land, producing almost anything that can be grown anywhere, mild climate, good schools, good water, healthful surroundings, and a growing country are some of the advantages.

Unexcelled for raising fruits and vegetables for early markets. Land that can be bought for $5 to $10 per acre can be made to yield $100 to $200 per acre in orchard and truck farm.

First and third Tuesdays of each month we sell homeseeker's tickets from Memphis and Cairo at one fare plus $2 for the round trip.

Literature descriptive of above country and information about rates.

NOTHING TO SAY.

EXPERIENCE OF HENRY AND ESMERALDA.

Henry felt a vague alarm when Mrs. Torchiller went out of the room and left him alone with Esmeralda. He generally did. Somehow, conversation languished when she had gone, and he really got on better with the girl when her mother was present. Once ten minutes passed, by the parlor clock, and he did not say one single word to Esmeralda, and she said not one word to him in the same length of time. When he did speak it was to say that he must be going. She said, "What's your hurry?" but it was obviously a perfunctory question, and he only said: "I guess I'll have to be moving on," without explaining his haste.

"Come again," said the girl.

"I will," he replied; and he did.

Here he was again, and again on the closing of the parlor door behind Mrs. Torchiller's broad back he felt the old paralysis of speech, the same strange numbness of all mental faculties.

Esmeralda rocked back and forth in the chair and fingered her string of colored beads, her eyes downcast. The rooker creaked slightly. That was something.

"That chair squeaks, don't it?" said Henry.

"Yes," replied Esmeralda, without raising her eyes. "Father says it needs gluing at the joints," she added, after a pause.

Henry turned this information over in his mind for a minute or two.

"I guess that's what it needs," he said, suddenly.

"What?" exclaimed Esmeralda.

"Gluing."

"Oh!"

The subject, it seemed, was exhausted. Henry wondered if she would be mad if he had to be going. It might look as if he did not want to stay. He did want to stay; he was sure of that. Esmeralda was good to look at as she sat there. All the same, there wasn't any use staying unless he could think of something to talk about. He knew lots of things; he was conscious of that. He had thought of three or four topics of conversation as he came along, but somehow they had gone clear of his head. He wished that old clock would not tick so loudly. He coughed behind his hand. Esmeralda coughed sympathetically.

"It looks as if it might be going to rain," she remarked timidly.

"I presume likely," answered Henry. They both looked at the window, but it was too dark to see anything outside.

There was another long silence, and then Henry made a movement to rise.

"Don't you want to write in my autograph album?" asked Esmeralda, quickly.

"Oh, pshaw!" said Henry. "I couldn't write anything."

"Why, yes you could."

She arose and walked over to the bookcase in the corner of the room, and after a moment's search picked out a little red bound volume and brought it to him. He turned it over in his hand and looked with interest at the medallion portrait of the fair girl with the cobalt eyes displayed on the cover. Then he opened it.

"I haven't got no pen and ink," he said, seriously, as if it had been his ordinary habit to carry these materials with him.

"I'll go and get them for you," said Esmeralda.

When she had gone he turned the pages of the book slowly, reading in the hope of thereby recalling some neat epigram or moral reflection. He knew some, but now, at the pinch, they had deserted him. "Ever remember me" sounded tame, and that was all he could think of.

As he stared at a blank page an inspiration came to him. He would ask to be allowed to take the book home with him, and he would write something in it then that would convey eloquently the state of his feelings. Perhaps after she read it she would say something.

Just then Esmeralda returned with the pen and ink.

"I guess I'll have to be going now," said Henry, in sudden trepidation. I'll take the book along with me and write something in it at home."

"No, write something now," she insisted.

He sat down awkwardly by the center table and opened the book.

"What shall I write?" he asked.

"Oh, anything," she answered.

"I can't think of anything."

He tried the pen on his thumb nail and then wrote:

"Dear Esmeralda—"

"Oh, shucks!" he said. "I can't think of anything else."

She bent over him and looked.

"Can't you think of anything but 'Dear Esmeralda'?" she asked.

"No," he replied, boldly. "Dear Esmeralda" is all I can think of." And then for the first time they looked each other squarely in the eyes.

"What are you young people doing?" asked Esmeralda's mother, suspiciously, a little later.

"Just talking," replied Henry.

"You must have a good deal to say," the mother retorted.

Henry smiled and said, "You bet we have."—Chicago Daily News.

PRIMARY ELECTION

To Nominate Candidates For Council.

At a meeting of the Democratic City Committee of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, held Monday, July 3rd, 1905, (said committee consisting of James West, L. T. Brasher, J. D. Higgins, Lucian H. Davis, D. D. Cayce and Hunter Wood, Jr., and all the members being present, the following call was thereupon issued:

A primary election is hereby ordered to be held in each of the wards of the city of Hopkinsville, Ky., on Tuesday, the 15th day of August, 1905, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 4 p. m., to nominate candidates for city councilmen to run on the Democratic ticket at the regular November election to be held November 7th, 1905. The voting shall be by secret ballot, and all Democrats who are qualified voters of the wards in which they live or will be at the said November election and such independent voters as will pledge themselves in good faith to support the Democratic ticket at said election, shall be entitled to vote.

The officers of said primary shall be two judges and a clerk in each ward, the clerk to decide all questions upon which the two judges can not agree. The votes shall be counted at the close of the polls and the result certified to the city committee, which shall declare the candidate receiving the highest number of votes in each ward, to be the nominee of the party in said ward. All announcements of candidates to be made public by or before 6 p. m. July 15th, 1905.

The committee shall prepare a list of officers for the several wards representing all candidates as equally as possible and furnish them to the secretary, who shall announce same and prepare the necessary books and ballot boxes and also arrange for holding the election in each ward.

If in any ward or wards in the city there shall be only one announced candidate subject to the action of the Democratic party, at 6 o'clock p. m. on July 15th, 1905, then such candidate shall be declared the Democratic nominee for his ward, by the committee at a meeting to be held Monday, July 17th, 1905, at 4 o'clock p. m., and no primary election shall be held in such ward or wards.

The primary election will be held in the following places:
First ward, city court room.
Second ward, Moayan's Hall.
Third ward, M. H. Tandy & Co., warehouse.

Fourth ward, Eades' coal yard.
Sixth ward, Foulks' coal yard.
Seventh ward, Rickman's stable.

JAMES WEST, Chairman.
HUNTER WOOD, JR., Sec'y.
L. T. BRASHER,
J. D. HIGGINS,
LUCIAN H. DAVIS,
D. D. CAYCE,

Democratic committee for the city of Hopkinsville.

WOMAN'S WOES.

Hopkinsville Women Are Finding Relief at Home.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop over means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John Coombs, of 1226 South Virginia street, says: "For a great many years I suffered with a persistent aching across my loins and through the kidneys. At times my back was so bad that I could hardly turn in bed and I could hardly lie on my back at all without placing my hand under it which seemed in some measure to relieve the pain. A friend of Mr. Coombs told him about Doan's Kidney Pills and he got a box for me at Thomas & Trahern's drug store. On using them I steadily improved until the dreadful aching was relieved and I could attend to my household duties without any inconvenience. They did more for me than any medicine I ever used and I gladly recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
